U. S. Has The Jump

The recent switch of personnel in key jobs in the Kremlin is now believed to be like the switches that occur in French politics—the more the faces change the more they are the same.

But all is not as it was before in the Kremlin. There has been a subtle alteration. The Kremlin no longer has the jump in the cold war. Instead of keeping the rest of the world guessing about what it's going to do, it is spending more time guessing what the United States is going to do.

The Atlantic pact, following closely on ECA, the Marshall plan and the Truman doctrine and opening new potentialities of military as well as economic strength in western Europe, has put the Kremlin on the defensive. The maintenance of the Berlin air lift through the winter and the stiffening of western attitude about German policy is hardly one of the things the Kremlin could have expected. Like Tito's unforeseen attitude, it calls for reorientation of strategy. Suddenly, everything seems to be going wrong. The United States is even tightening the screws on homegrown Reds—dragging them into court after 15 years of special privilege. The Kremlin no longer has the jump.

The United States has the jump now. Will Eugene Dennis be put on ice, and if so who will be able to succeed him? Will Communists in America be barred from holding offices in labor unions, or will the Truman administration foolishly do away with that safeguard? Will the United States let itself be run out of Japan? The Kremlin would like to know. For answers to these and other questions, see the history books.

The Play's The Thing

Jane Wyman and Sir Laurence Olivier, receiving congratulations for their Motion Picture Academy awards as "best" actress and actor of the year, are humbly aware that the play's the thing.

So are all the other actors who have received awards this year for unusually credible and creditable performances. They know that far greater skill in acting may have been wasted on scripts that never jelled into successful movies. Given the right play for his talents, an actor hardly can miss recognition. Miss Wyman now can look for another "Johnny Belinda," and Sir Laurence can be grateful, as dozens of actors have been grateful before him, for Shakespeare's "Hamlet." And the motion picture industry, seeking the terms of survival, can be grateful—as it is—that it occasionally finds just the right play for the right actors, blending them into great experience in the theater.

For every play that's chosen, dozens are rejected. And from those chosen only a handful will survive critical inspection. That's why the theater is engrossing to its devotees. It's why the annual presentation of the Academy awards is of interest to millions. Nothing is more difficult to achieve than a great movie or a great play. There can be no complete culture without a theater. Yet, in the United States, the moving picture industry has assumed responsibility for the "people's theater."

Without Tolerance

The house un-American activities committee has come to life again with a report on the activities of Communist spies in the United States.

The committee estimates there are at least 825,000 Americans who would put the Soviet Union ahead of this country in a crisis. Within this group are some 74,000 active Communists who already are doing so.

These people, wholly intolerant of the United States, endlessly plead for tolerance to carry on their work. They do everything in their power to maintain an appearance of legality. They insist on the right to worm their way into organizations. They confess no inconsistency in claiming the protection of a government they are trying to destroy. They are aware of no inconsistency.

It is next to impossible for Americans to comprehend a conspiracy which aims to bend every civilization to the dictatorship of the Communist party. There is nothing in this country's credo which provides a key to the intolerance of a Communist. The United States was founded in a spirit of tolerance and has maintained that spirit throughout its history. Americans, consequently, can understand only with great effort that the Soviet union was founded in a spirit of intolerance and aims to expend its influence by taking advantage of tolerance, which its masters regard as a weakness, not a virtue.

The Stars Say

For Sunday, March 27
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows the advisability of taking time out for not only relaxation and diversion but the wisdom of allowing an introspective study of plans of vital importance, currently on the agenda for keen analysis, or for an imperative period for incubation of new ideas in a more or less critical condition.

Frustrations, impediments and stubborn obstacles might melt away during a period of "letting it ride." There may be spectacular denouement for the proper manipulation.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, are confronted by a period of opportunity for making some brilliant coup, this precipitating them into the spotlight, both near and far.

Abrupt and sudden factors should give way to changed tactics, with daring, audacity, tackling problems from fresh angles or utilizing new ways and means to launch daring projects or unique propositions. In the face of opposition or want of cooperation. Obstacles melt away in the face of exceptional skill, ingenuity, drastic innovation.

A child born on this day, although serious, studious and responsible, yet may attain conspicuous success through its ingenuity, skill, and originality. Inventive and audacious, it may attain unusual recognition.

For Monday, March 28

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a definite move in the direction of putting over unusual plans, projects or ideas, of an inventive or constructive significance. Funds and influence for furthering such exceptional program for expansion and security, are in sight, yet there is a menace from bungling, mistaken judgment or improper tactics.

It may be desirable to revise plans, make drastic changes, or to placate some form of opposition or conflict. Make new agreements on a basis of logic and good sense not distorted by emotions or erratic urges.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, are assured an excellent year, with substantial support and influence from those in high places. These may be impressed by the novelty, creative talents and skill, or by the daring and originality of a brilliant deviation from routine techniques, or ways and means of revising old tactics or operations.

Be gracious in yielding to perhaps, superior knowledge or experience as the judgment may not be as clear or impressive to those whose capital is at risk in launching an experiment. Emotional drives of erratic thinking could forfeit ready promise of long-range greatness and security, personal as well as business.

A child born on this day is ambitious, talented and may possess ideas and projects for unusual success, with prestige and profitability. Flasher of complicated thinking of erratic urges could upset its flourishing career.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

New Word In Medical Language

BY HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

In the last few years a great new word has appeared in the medical world. It is called histamine. It is important because histamine or some substance similar to it, is thought to be the common factor in allergic disorders from which so many people are suffering.

It would appear that in persons who have an allergic disorder, such as asthma, hives, eczema, or hay fever, an excessive amount of this substance is formed when such persons eat foods or breathe in dusts or pollens to which they are sensitive. It is this excessive histamine that causes the allergic reaction.

There are certain drugs which are capable of diminishing or preventing the effects of the histamine. These are called antihistaminic drugs. When administered to patients, all of these preparations produce similar results. They differ, however, in several minor ways in the reactions which they may produce. For example, some of them may produce more drowsiness than others. Some, on the other hand, may produce wakefulness.

None of these substances acts very rapidly, according to Dr. David F. March of West Virginia University. Furthermore, they will not prevent the symptoms of the allergy; they can be used merely to overcome or reduce these symptoms once they have appeared. Relief of symptoms has been noted in such conditions as hives and hay fever, both the kind that occurs during the fall months and those which occur during the year round. In many cases of itching, these preparations have been found useful. Also, in some instances, the patient with asthma or eczema has been benefited. On the other hand, these preparations do not seem to do a great deal of good in cases of migraine, although these patients may be helped. Some doctors believe that migraine is due to allergy.

Given by Mouth

Capsules or tablets of these preparations are given by mouth. The dose varies, of course, with the age of the patient and the preparation employed. It would not seem advisable that these drugs be given for longer than eight weeks at a time.

Patients who are made sleepy, dizzy, or nervous by these drugs should not, while they are using these preparations, undertake activities requiring close attention or alertness, such as driving an automobile.

Other reactions may include mental confusion, weakness, or fainting. There may also be sickness at the stomach or vomiting.

There can be no doubt that these preparations have a great deal of usefulness, but they should be employed only under the direction of a physician.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. H. B.: What are the symptoms of an enlarged heart?

Answer: Enlargement of the heart may cause such symptoms as noticeable and rapid beating of the heart, shortness of breath, and possibly some pain in the chest. However, the heart may be moderately enlarged without any noticeable symptoms being present.

A thorough study by a physician is needed to determine the amount of the enlargement and its cause so that proper treatment may be carried out.

Letters to Dr. Bundesen should be addressed in care of 235 E. 45th St., New York City.

Too Much Moisture In Ground Hurts Farmers

COLUMBUS, March 26 — Too much moisture in Ohio produced grains is robbing farmers of their just profits, a grain marketing specialist said here yesterday.

W. B. Combs, specialist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, was one of the speakers on the Farm and Home week program at Ohio State university.

"It is apparent," he said, "that excessive moisture content is the principal factor that lowers the quality of Ohio grain. This high moisture favors the growth of molds and starts the germination process. It causes staining, weathering and sprouting in the field, and damage, heating and spoiling in the bin, as well as making a fine home for injurious insects."

Illustrating the seriousness of the moisture problem, he pointed out that up to Feb. 10, 1949, 1,406 corn loans had been made in Ohio, covering 1,156,000 bushels, but that for every loan made, one was turned down because the corn was too wet.

Wheat loans in Ohio, he said, totaled 2,303; covering 2,092,000 bushels, but for every three loans made, one was rejected because the wheat was too wet.

Cook sauerkraut with a diced apple and a little onion; flavor with salt, pepper and sugar and add a little butter or margarine. This is a good vegetable dish to serve with meat loaf and oven-browned potatoes.

Shut Down Plant

MOUNT VERNON, March 26—A "temporary shutdown" of its Mount Vernon rock bit plant was announced by Timken Roller Bearing company yesterday. Officials of the firm said the plant would close March 31 because of lack of business. There was no statement as to how many of the 180 employees would be affected.

Strapless Gowns Ruled Out For These Young Girls

MILWAUKEE, March 26—(UP)—The "demure look" will be the vogue among Milwaukee's Catholic High school girls at spring proms this year.

Rev. Moses E. Kiley, archbishop of Milwaukee, issued a directive that banned the wearing of strapless evening gowns, or any style dress that bares the shoulders, at Parochial High school dances.

The directive, issued yesterday, also set curfews on how late the dances may run, limited some of the expenses boys may spend on their dates, and established general rules for student conduct at the affairs.

Rev. Edmund J. Goebel, superintendent of schools for the archdiocese, said the action was taken because of the "rise of juvenile delinquency" in the community.

As a result of the ban on revealing frocks, many girls hastened to exchange the dresses they had planned to wear to spring frolics. Some mothers, who already had begun to work on their daughters' gowns, were seeking patterns to conform with the archbishop's ruling.

Violators of Kiley's orders will be "dismissed from the prom." Under the directive, boys are banned from wearing formal attire. They must wear business suits.

Goebel said the order was issued after parents, queried in a circulation of questionnaires, expressed concern over prom expenses. The directive was written by agreement of the principals of the 15 schools involved.

Instead of letting the students go to night clubs or expensive restaurants following the dances, Kiley recommended that parents provide for "modest house parties" in their homes. The parents had complained about a lack of suitable entertainment for the young people after the dances.

Report Living Costs Back To 1948 Level

WASHINGTON, March 26—Living costs have slipped back almost to where they were at the start of 1948.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported last night 1.1 percent drop in its consumer price index brought January 15 and February 15 brought the cost of living to within 0.9 per cent of the figure for a year ago.

It marked the fifth month in a row during which there was a drop in the price of things people buy. And it was one of the sharpest drops for one month since the war.

The index is based on a comparison between present prices and those of the 1935-1939 period in 56 cities.

The latest index was 169 per cent of the average for those prewar years—27 per cent higher than June, 1946, when price controls were lifted, and 71 per cent higher than the figure for August, 1939.

SHEPPARD

proposes three major changes among others.

They would specifically prevent independent Presidential elector candidates from getting on the ballot by petition.

Restore the old law requiring county election boards to count ballots when voters' intentions could be determined, and Require certification of all proposed tax levies and bond issues to election boards 90 days before elections to qualify for places on ballots.

The last requirement would make the bond issue and tax levy deadline conform with that for candidates' filing.

A law sponsored by Sheppard two years ago requires discard of ballots bearing any symbols other than "X" marks to indicate a voter's choice. Election officials said many ballots marked otherwise had to be discarded although intent of voters seemed clear.

But probably 90 per cent of the discarded resulted from a state supreme court ruling governing Wallace elector candidates on Presidential ballots. It resulted in what was termed a "dog-leg" ballot in the last election.

Names of all 25 electors for Henry Wallace were printed on the ballot under an "Independent" label without his name or any progressive party emblem.

The names of Harry S. Truman and Thomas E. Dewey appeared under the Democratic and Republican party labels and emblems. But by custom their elector candidates were not listed. A Democratic or Republican vote automatically was for all 25 electors of those parties.

But Wallace electors had to be marked individually to be counted. Some voters "scratched" their ballots by placing an "X" in a major party column and also before one or more Wallace elector names. That disqualified their ballot.

The Supreme court held that Ohio law does not specifically prevent Presidential elector candidates from getting on the ballot by petition. The proposed law would ban that definitely.

Wallace electors got on the Ohio Presidential ballot by petition rejected by the secretary of state but sanctioned by the court.

Republican and Democratic Presidential elector candidates in Ohio were picked at party state conventions. Delegates to the conventions were named at the previous elections.

The new proposal will make such procedure mandatory for all Presidential elector candidates to get on the Ohio ballot.

FRANCE AND ITALY IN CUSTOMS UNION

PARIS, March 26—(AP)—France and Italy will sign a treaty here today establishing a Franco-Italian customs union in 1950 and a complete economic merger by 1955.

Foreign Ministers Robert Schuman of France and Count Carlo Sforza of Italy will sign the document at 11 a. m.

French officials said they hope the French and Italian parliaments will ratify the agreement before adjourning for the eastern vacation.

The treaty's text will not be released until later today, but officials said it provides for elimination of customs duties on shipments between France and Italy in the first year after ratification. Both countries also will adopt identical tariff schedules for commerce with other nations, the informants said.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, March 26—The veterans' pension bill seems dead for this year, buried by the house. It had a dizzy funeral, one of the strangest.

Thinking of the veterans when election comes around, house members approached the bill like a man examining the teeth of a lion. One of them, unabashed, told newsmen ironically:

"This is where I rise above principle and vote political."

But another, less gay about voting for something he didn't believe in, told reporters:

"It isn't a question of whether I'm for or against the bill, but whether I want to get re-elected. So I'll have to vote for it."

In the end, he voted against it. So did a majority of the congressmen but it took them three days to take that step. They finally did it by tormenting and disfiguring the bill till its own father wouldn't know it.

In this case the father was Rep. John Rankin, Mississippi Democrat, a little man with a bright tie and perpendicular white hair. Rankin, a veteran of World War I, is peppery at 67.

His bill would have given veterans of World Wars I and II a pension of $90 a month when they reached 65, whether or not they needed the money.

If the bill ever became law, government officials had warned, it would cost the country $125,000,000 in 50 years.

And, thinking of the big debt the country has already, President Truman and his leaders in congress didn't want it.

RIGHT FROM the first, it seems, the house members didn't want it either but in the beginning they didn't want to say so publicly where their name and their vote against it would be on record.

Almost immediately when the bill came up Tuesday a majority of the house voted to kill it. But this was in the kind of vote where their vote was listed by number, not by name.

But, almost as fast, when they were called upon to vote by name, they voted against killing the bill. In three days they changed their vote five times.

On the second day they began to beat the bill out of shape by voting changes in it, right on the floor. By the time they were through that second day practically no one knew what had been voted into it.

All the while the house had been roundly lambasted in the press for its tactics. And yesterday, Herb Block, cartoonist for the Washington Post which congressmen read, teed off on them.

His drawing showed a monstrous fat man, labeled "House of Representatives," bending over while a "Congressional Medal" was pinned on the seat of his pants by a slap-happy character called "Pension Grab."

The medal read: "For unusual running, dodging and reversing without regard for the call of the duty."

And yesterday the house came back and by one vote—306 to 207—killed the bill. Not outright. The house voted to "send it back to committee." That's something like sending a boy to the graveyard.
